Chest Drive Reaches 20 Percent Of Quota

HOPES and the red paint on the Red Feather both rose following the first report meeting of the Monroe County Community Chest Council when division chairmen met at the Penn-Stroud Hotel yesterday.

Contributions of $17,121.11 were reported, making 20 per cent of the minimum amount needed by the 12 member agencies for efficient service to the people of this community.

Cautious optimism was voiced by Glenn Sanborn Jr., president of the Chest. The total of $86,944 can be achieved, he said, but only by the free-will offering of everybody in the community.

"The services offered by our agencies are necessary services," he warned, "and if the people do not support them voluntarily, they will have to support them with tax dollars."

He introduced the co-chairmen, of the campaign Fred J. Lee and John W. Sibley, and John Valence, chairman of publicity, and the artist, Pierre Fortier, who has been sketching the chairmen for publication in "The Daily Record."

William Reaser reported for the industrial division of which he and Al Schaeffer are co-chairmen. To date the industrial division has reached $4,687.25 or 19.9 percent of its quota. Reaser hailed those employees who are making use of the pay-roll deduction plan to increase their contributions to the 12 agencies.

Trades Division

Jack Bernbaum represented the trade division which has reached $2,020, or 14.4 percent of quota. He and Martin Ellsweil are co-chairmen in East Stroudsburg; Glen Sanborn III in Stroudsburg.

Chester Miller and Frank Lanterman represented the Public Service Division, of which Theodore Henning is also a chairman. They reported all cards out and gifts of $630, representing 10.8 percent of their quota.

Walter McClelland, co-chairman with Stuart Pipher of organizations, reported gifts of $750 or 67 percent of quota.

Mrs. Alfred Morse was introduced as chairman of house-to-house in Stroudsburg, which with $240 has reached 11.6 percent of its quota.

Volunteers Needed

Sanborn also noted the need for volunteer captains in East Stroudsburg and in the county at large to enlist the help of other volunteers in calling at the individual homes. Even without organized solicitations there have been gifts of $165 from East Stroudsburg bringing it to 13.7 percent of its quota and of $711 from the county at large for 11.8 percent.

The resort division was not represented at the meeting although gifts of $3,097 have brought those contributions up to 49.8 percent of quota.

Barrett Twp. also had no representative present. The sum of $828 has been received from Barrett, or 5.9 percent of quota.

No report was received from the Tobyhanna Signal Depot.

Red Rocket Boss Dies In Accident

MOSCOW (AP)—Marshal Mitrofan Ivanovich Nedelin, commander of the Soviet Union's rocket forces and one of Premier Khrushchev's most trusted men, was killed Monday in an air accident.

Nedelin was the man given direct authority to retaliate for spy flights over the Soviet Union after U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers was downed and captured.

The marshal's death was announced Tuesday night by the official Soviet news agency Tass and Radio Moscow.

No details of the accident were given except for the word that he was killed in the course of his duties.

A striking man of medium height, athletic build and iron gray hair, the 57-year-old Nedelin was often described by Khrushchev as one of his most trusted marshals.

Radio Moscow announced that his successor was named immediately.

The broadcast said Nedelin would be succeeded as rocket troop commander by Marshal Kiril Semenovich Moskalenko, 60, commander of the Moscow Military District.

Moskalenko also took over the post of deputy minister of defense which Nedelin formerly held.

Nedelin was appointed chief of Soviet rocket forces in May, only a few days after the Soviet Union credited one of its rocket units with shooting down Powers near Sverdlovsk.

June 3 Soviet Premier Khrushchev said Nedelin had been given direct authority to use nuclear warheads in rockets fired at bases in retaliation for any future spy flights.

Nedelin, born in 1903 or 1904, joined the Red Army after the Russian Revolution. He fought in the Spanish Civil War on the Republican side as an artillery adviser. He was an artillery commander on the Third Ukrainian Front in World War II.

L&NE Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interstate Commerce Commission Tuesday announced it will hold a further hearing here Nov. 15 on a proposal by the Lehigh & New England Railroad to abandon its entire line consisting of 175 miles of track in eastern Pennsylvania, northern New Jersey and southern New York State.

County officials in this suburban area of Atlanta called King's part in the sit-ins a violation of a 12-month probationary sentence given him Sept. 23 on a charge of driving without a license.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., holder of degrees from at least five colleges, may spend the time on a road gang if an appeal is denied.

King was among 79 persons arrested Oct. 19 during mass picketing and sit-in demonstrations protesting segregated eating places at Atlanta department and variety stores.

More U.S. Property Seized

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro took another quarter-billion dollar bite from the remaining American properties in Cuba Tuesday. He said he was retaliating against the U.S. embargo on most exports to this island nation.

A decree issued at dawn after a meeting of Castro's Cabinet announced the seizure of 167 American firms. With this seizure, Castro was almost down to the "nails in their shoes" he had promised to take from American investors here on the ground the United States was committing aggression against Cuba.

The preamble spelled out the decree's retaliatory nature, asserting that Washington's ban on shipping everything but food and medical supplies to Cuba is designed to "strangle our economy."

Refuse To Buy

The Cabinet challenged the U.S. government itself by seizing the Nicaro nickel plant, owned by the U.S. General Services Administration. Washington had decided to shut the plant, located in eastern Cuba, after the Cuban government refused to make what U.S. officials considered a realistic offer to buy it. Its listed value is $110 million.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman denounced the seizures as a move "in full accord with international Communist dogma." He said it represents another step by Castro's government to exploit the Cuban people for foreign political purposes. The spokesman did not mention the Nicaro nickel plant.

The seizures ranged from 30 American insurance companies—some of them with assets up to $20 million—to the Capri Hotel's gambling casino and the Havana racetrack. Havana's only armored car company was confiscated.

Firms Confiscated

Among the larger firms seized were Cuban outlets of Woolworth's, Sears Roebuck, Coca-Cola, Westinghouse, General Electric, Reynolds Aluminum, Schering Pharmaceutical, Abbott Laboratories, Burrus Mills, Bethlehem Steel, Kodak, Railway Express, Simmons Beds, Continental Can, Armour Meats, Owen Illinois Glass and the Minimax supermarket chain.

The seizures also reached smaller firms in construction, textiles, cosmetics, paper, minerals, oil, auto machinery, poultry, tobacco, rice milling, electric light bulbs, railroad, clothing, electricity and dry cleaning.

Nixon continued to picture Kennedy as inexperienced and impulsive, but declared that he and his running mate, Henry Cabot Lodge, were a veteran team with the know-how to deal with the Russians.

In all of his speeches, Nixon noted that the election is two weeks away, and told his listeners their vote "could be the most important decision of your life."

"You are deciding who will be the leader of the whole free world. What the President in Washington can do affects the lives of every person in this audience," he said.

The vice president continued the effort he began Monday in his Pennsylvania tour to link up Kennedy with the Truman regime, and he also introduced a new jibe at the senator's "new Frontiers" slogan.

"You can't cross the new frontiers in an old jalopy that is broken down in 1952 and still is broken down today," he declared.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower came back to Washington Tuesday apparently happy about his 10-day trip to the West with a nonpolitical label. He seemed ready to "clear the air" in a frankly political campaign speech in Philadelphia Friday.

Despite the nonpolitical sticker on the trip that ended, some of the things Eisenhower said along the way were interpreted widely as digs at Democratic presidential nominee John F. Kennedy and plugs for Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the Republican candidate.

Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty was asked, in the light of these interpretations, whether he or any of the White House staff had any estimates as to the effect of the tour.

Hagerty grinned and said he would leave that to newsmen.

Nixon Takes Up Challenge On Formosa

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon declared Tuesday night Sen. John F. Kennedy was completely wrong in stating that the Eisenhower administration had tried to get the Chinese Nationalists to withdraw from Quemoy and Matsu.

Kennedy challenged Nixon in last Friday's television-radio debate to deny that several missions were sent to Formosa to try to persuade Chiang Kai-Shek to remove his troops from the two offshore islands.

Nixon, in his first nationally televised speech from a Republican rally in the campaign, took up this challenge, asserting, "I do flatly, categorically and emphatically deny," his opponent's statement.

The Republican presidential nominee said his answer was given after he had talked by telephone with military and diplomatic leaders who had been in the Far East for the administration.

The vice president came here after a day of whistle-stopping across southern Ohio in brisk but sunny autumn weather with one excursion into West Virginia.

He continued his sharp attacks on his Democratic foe, saying at Marietta that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev "would have stomped on" Kennedy if the senator had represented the U. S. at last May's summit conference in Paris.

In devoting a major part of Tuesday night's speech to Quemoy and Matsu, Nixon was seeking to exploit an issue he obviously feels has given a lift to his campaign.

The vice president charges that Kennedy would abandon the islands to the Chinese Communists in a futile effort to appease them; the senator says Nixon would risk nuclear war over the islands even though a Communist attack on them was not a prelude to an assault on Formosa.

Nixon insisted that the dispute shows Kennedy "fails to grasp the total picture. He fails to mention what is really at stake in this area—the security of the free world in the Western Pacific, the preservation of peace through prevention of steps that could lead to war."

Nixon's charge that Khrushchev would have stomped on Kennedy at Paris was based, the vice president said, on the senator's statement he would have apologized to the Soviet leader for the U2 flights.

Nixon continued to picture Kennedy as inexperienced and impulsive, but declared that he and his running mate, Henry Cabot Lodge, were a veteran team with the know-how to deal with the Russians.

In all of his speeches, Nixon noted that the election is two weeks away, and told his listeners their vote "could be the most important decision of your life."

Blast Rips Store

Explosion Kills 9

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP)—A two-story department store blew apart and collapsed in this Canadian border city Tuesday, killing nine persons and injuring at least 75. Police said they feared the death toll might rise to at least 12.

The back wall of Metropolitan Stores Ltd. was blown out. The second floor and roof collapsed in a portion of the building. Snapped power lines started fires, but these were extinguished.

Joseph Halford, 31, manager of the store, said a gas furnace was being installed in the 100-foot wide, two-story building. Halford suffered severe cuts and burns.

Pat Maguire, Windsor building commissioner, said "there is every indication" a gas explosion occurred.

An insurance adjuster at the scene estimated damage at $500,000, "not including stock."

Windsor is across the Detroit River from Detroit, Mich. The store is on Ouellette Ave., the city's busiest thoroughfare.

Rescue workers feared still more bodies and injured would be found as they dug through the debris. Hospitals said they already had treated or admitted more than 50 injured two hours after the devastating blast.

St. Alphonsus Roman Catholic School is just beyond the rear door of the store, and while the explosion was most fierce in the back of the building, none of the school's 380 children was hurt. Pupils who sometime use the store's alley hadn't been let out for the day.

Some people were blown into Ouellette Avenue by the explosion and the street was littered with toys, pillows and debris. Half a dozen cars parked at the rear were smashed by falling wreckage. Windows of a car out front were blown out.

The store's concrete floor was buckled at the front entrance and all its windows were shattered. A crumpled rag doll lay near a smashed counter.

Mrs. W. H. McDowell, secretary in a law office upstairs in an adjoining building, said just after 2 p.m. "the lights went off and everything flew off the desk."

"I ran down stairs as fast as I could. Everything was terrible. You couldn't hear anything for a while. Then people started to come out of the store, hurt and bleeding. A little girl was crying. Some people lay down. It was terrible, awful."

Certainly, he saw many Republican placards and photographs of Nixon. At one point his car slowly passed a large Nixon sign held by a man and woman. Kennedy smiled at them and said, "thank you for coming out anyway."

In the crowd, one could hear remarks such as, "he's all right, but Nixon is better," and "I don't think I would sleep soundly at night with him in the White House."

Arms Talks Doomed Unless Russia Gets Its Own Way

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The Soviet Union has virtually written off U.N. disarmament debate at this time as useless. It said Tuesday the only way to resolve the East-West deadlock is to hold a special General Assembly session next spring at the summit level.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zerin told the 99-nation Political Committee that unless the United States and its allies accept Soviet Premier Khrushchev's approach on disarmament, "we shall have no other choice" than to terminate Soviet participation in committee debate.

His words foreshadowed an imminent boycott of the entire Soviet bloc of the committee at least on that phase of the debate dealing with Khrushchev's call for an international treaty on complete and total disarmament.

Zerin accused the United States and the Western powers of using the committee as a smokescreen for a policy of continuing the arms race "and brinkmanship."

He said that refusal to take factured provocation" at Guantanamo Naval Base in Cuba to influence the election.

The Cuban foreign minister made his charges during an appeal to the General Assembly's Steering Committee for a full airing of alleged U. S. plans for a massive invasion of Cuba, "possibly within hours."

The committee quickly approved his request after the United States said it would not oppose it.

Cuba, however, lost her attempt to get a direct debate in the Assembly itself. The committee voted 12-3 to send the issue to the Assembly's political committee as the United States proposed. Five countries abstained.

U. S. Delegate James W. Barco called the Cuban invasion charges "a monstrous fabrication." He said there were other irresponsible and reckless accusations by the government of Fidel Castro and that they already had been declared groundless by the Security Council and the Organization of American States.

Roa did not expand on his "scapegoat" remark, but he made it clear that he was referring to recent campaign statements. He asserted the United States was planning to use the same tactics to get rid of Prime Minister Castro as it allegedly used in Guatemala in 1954 to overthrow the Communist dominated government there.

Food Plant Burns; Loss Tops Million

LEBANON, Pa. (AP)—Fire swept through the San Giorgio Macaroni plant here Tuesday, causing damages estimated by a company official at more than a million dollars. Two firemen were injured.

The fire was discovered by night watchman Samuel Moore shortly after 3 a.m.

Fire companies from all Lebanon County communities, Reading and Ephrata joined in battling the blaze.

Joseph R. Flick, 51, and Walter Bashore, 29, both of the Lebanon hook and ladder company were injured when a truck with its ladder extended rolled over. Flick plunged nearly 50 feet from the end of the ladder. He was admitted to Lebanon's Good Samaritan Hospital with injuries of the left leg and shoulder.

Zerin accused the United States and the Western powers of using the committee as a smokescreen for a policy of continuing the arms race "and brinkmanship."

He said that refusal to take part in the committee's discussion would destroy the illusion that serious work is being done "when the Western powers are doing their utmost to sidetrack" the committee from solving the disarmament problem.

"It is becoming increasingly evident that at present the United States is not ready to hold productive negotiations on disarmament, and its allies cannot do anything," he asserted. "They try to mask their helplessness by appeals for patient negotiations without proposing any real basis for the success of such negotiations."

Khrushchev has proposed that an assembly session on disarmament be held in the spring either in Europe or the Soviet Union. He has also called for enlargement of the 10-nation East-West committee by adding five neutrals.

The Soviet delegate lashed out bitterly at Western statesmen who have asked the committee to approve a U.S.-British-Italian resolution that envisions a gradual approach to disarmament with emphasis on controls.

Kennedy's Bid Pegged To Survey

IN ILLINOIS WITH KENNEDY (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy charged Tuesday that the Eisenhower administration concealed the findings of a survey of 10 nations—showing that American prestige has declined—in order to protect Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

He referred to a survey made by the United States Information Agency.

Kennedy said the administration "refused to release it. And the reason is that they (the findings) show Mr. Nixon is misinformed."

The Democratic presidential candidate hammered his attack as he motored through cities and towns around Chicago.

The question of prestige of the United States has been argued by Kennedy and Nixon since their first television debate. Nixon said it is "at an all-time high" whereas Kennedy said it has been "declining."

At the White House, Press Secretary James C. Hagerty turned aside all questions about the report, referring newsmen to a statement last week by Mansfield D. Sprague, chairman of the President's committee on information activities abroad. That statement said the committee had made no report or findings and "no conclusions as to the status of U.S. prestige abroad."

Tuesday, in three whistle-stop speeches, Kennedy read paragraphs from a Page 1 story in the New York Times. They said the survey disclosed almost unanimous belief among people in nine European and one Asian nations that the Soviet Union is stronger than the United States. The survey also showed that they believe the Russians will hold that lead and, perhaps, widen it during the next decade.

"This shows how misinformed he (Nixon) is and how wide the gap is between what he believes and what the facts are," Kennedy said.

"If people have the idea that the Russians are the strongest, how are we going to get them to work with us and to follow us?" the candidate added.

"I don't seek to please you," Kennedy told an audience in St. Charles. "I seek to serve you. And honesty compels us to say that we must do better."

Kennedy's itinerary took him through some strongly Republican centers. He joked about it with each audience, saying, "this is not an overwhelmingly Democratic city."

Certainly, he saw many Republican placards and photographs of Nixon. At one point his car slowly passed a large Nixon sign held by a man and woman. Kennedy smiled at them and said, "thank you for coming out anyway."

In the crowd, one could hear remarks such as, "he's all right, but Nixon is better," and "I don't think I would sleep soundly at night with him in the White House."

Dear Abby

Taking Precautions

Dear Abby: My husband was in the hospital for surgery. When he was too weak to shave himself, he had a young nurse with a tight uniform shave him. When he was able to walk around he could have shaved himself, but he still asked this young nurse to shave him. I told him I could shave him if he couldn't do it himself, but he said I didn't know how. I know how as good as she did. When he left the hospital he gave her a five-dollar tip and hugged her neck. Now he says he wants to go back to the hospital and visit his old roommate, but I think he wants to see this nurse. He is 63 and so am I. Am I out of line for keeping him home?

JEALOUS

Dear Jealous: There's nothing wrong with building a snow fence before a blizzard hits, but I doubt if you have anything to worry about. It takes two to tango.

Dear Abby: My problem is my mother and father. I am a 17-year-old boy and my brother is 15. My parents keep saying they want a little girl so they are trying again. Abby, when your mother is 44 and your father is 46, don't you think they should be satisfied with two boys?

THINK IT'S A SIN

Dear Think: Think again. Dear Abby: Ever since I can remember I wanted to play piano. My father laughed at me and said music was for sissies. He tried to get me interested in sports, but I was never any good at it. (He was a good athlete.) I took piano lessons at school and stayed evenings to practice there.

When my mother bought me a spinet last Christmas I became the world's happiest boy. My father became the world's most disappointed man. Abby, I love music and my teacher says I have talent. I know I have failed my father and I am sorry, but what can I do to make it up to him? I am 14.

BIG DISAPPOINTMENT

Dear Big Disappointment: You haven't "failed" your father. Your father has failed you. We are not all cast from the same mold. The world needs Beethoven as well as baseball. Do the best you can with the talents you have, and don't feel guilty.

Confidential to Big Frat Man At The "11": Don't waste money on a fraternity pin. It's diaper pins you'll be needing.

Pull 'Campaign' Switch

NEWFOUNDLAND — Interest in "campaigns" as the November election draws nearer is growing more keen in some parts of the country. But here, there are two men, who, while they are keeping an eye on "Jack" and

"Dick" are also aware of Lee and Grant and Sherman.

Willis Gilpin and John Tobey recently followed the campaigns of the Armies of the Republic and of the Confederacy, beginning at Harpers Ferry, where 22 men under the leadership of John Brown struck the first blow in what they called "God's advancing war to free the slaves."

Follow Progress
The pair followed the progress of Jackson's Valley Campaign in the Shenandoah, and then went to Richmond, where they saw the old entrenchments and the site of the Seven Days Battle.

Their "tour" of Civil War scenes also took them to Chancellorsville, Fredericksburg, and Spotsylvania Court House. Both are "students" of the Civil War, and have made several pilgrimages to various battle sites, including Gettysburg.

First Snow Of Season

NEWFOUNDLAND — This Pocono Mountains area had its first snow storm of the season Monday night and early yesterday with two inches recorded here and four in LaAnna.

Highways in the Newfoundland area were clear, while those between LaAnna and Cresco were described as icy.

Power service interruptions were reported at 4:45 a.m. yesterday in the rural section of Pike County between here and Panther.

Approximately 220 widely-scattered homes were affected. A tree blown into the Wallen-paupack-Pocono tie line was blamed for the interruption by officials of Pennsylvania Power and Light Co. Service was restored about 9 a.m.

Water Salted By Accident

BERWICK, Pa. (AP) — A faulty valve in a brine feeder salted the drinking water in Berwick homes and businesses Monday night.

Employees of the Berwick Water Co. worked throughout the night and Tuesday in cleaning out the pipeline system. The brine is ordinarily used in tiny amounts as a softener when a low reservoir level necessitates the use of water pumped from deep wells.

Jobs Decrease In Monroe-Pike

EMPLOYMENT in the Monroe-Pike Counties labor market area began a usual seasonal decline immediately following Labor Day chiefly because of closing of most of the area's summer resorts. Losses were noted also in the construction industry.

In addition, layoffs occurred in the following manufacturing industries: leather and leather products, apparel and both electrical and non-electrical machinery, equipment and supplies. Some recalls occurred in several of the apparel plants during this same period. Employment in this industry is below the September figure of a year ago.

Eighty-four area firms in a variety of activities report their total area employment at 10,050 as of September 15, 1960.

This is a decline of approximately 400 from the September figure a year ago. Chief losses were in the construction industry.

Estimated 8,000

Pocono resorts employed an estimated 8,000 workers at mid-summer. Seasonal declines in this facet of local employment does not affect our local labor market to the degree that might be expected. Most of the separated workers are out-of-area residents who return to their home areas.

Hundreds of others are students who return to their classrooms when summer work terminates and they are no longer available for employment. A moderate number of local area residents are employed in resorts, however, and approximately 80 initial claims for unemployment insurance were filed during September in the Stroudsburg office by separated resort workers.

Mixed Changes

Mixed changes in the local labor market are anticipated over the two-month period ending November 15, 1960. Seasonal gains are expected in retail trade and in some service industries during the holiday season. Additional curtailment in outdoor employment such as construction work will not affect adversely these seasonal gains. Manufacturing employment during the forecast period appears disappointing.

Several manufacturing firms which normally increase employment during this period currently have employees in furloughed status and there is little likelihood that total area manufacturing employment will equal last year's level.

The Stroudsburg office currently has registered in its files a total of 685 applicants seeking work, 264 of whom are women and 133 are veterans. During August and September, this office placed in non-agricultural employment 428 applicants, provided employment counseling to 33 persons and processed for payment a total of 2,250 claims for unemployment insurance.

A veteran of World War I, he was also a member of George M. Kemp Post 346, American Legion, and J. Simpson Africa Lodge 628, Free and Accepted Masons, East Stroudsburg.

Surviving are his wife, Florence B. Risley; one daughter, Mrs. Betty McCluskey, and a granddaughter, Miss Judy McCluskey, all at home; a sister, Mrs. F. A. Fifth Arrested In Burglary

STRODSBURG police yesterday arrested Michael Reinheimer, 18, of 117 First St., Stroudsburg, on charges of receiving stolen property in connection with the Oct. 6 burglary of the Pocono Army and Navy Store on Stroudsburg's Main St.

Reinheimer pleaded guilty to the charge at a hearing last night before Peace Justice John C. F.

Foelker and was returned to Monroe County Jail in default of $3,000 bail.

Police Chief John B. Tretheway said Reinheimer's arrest grew out of a probe of the burglary by Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg and State Police.

Three pistols, later recovered, and about $100 in cash were taken.

Plead Guilty

Four men last week pleaded guilty to burglary charges at a hearing before Foelker in connection with the entry. They were returned to Monroe County jail until the court sets bail.

They were Gerard Exley, 26, of 191 Grove St., East Stroudsburg, and James G. Gougher, 18, of 44 Stoffet St.; Roy E. Goucher, 21, of 601 Ann St., and Joseph R. Hardy, 20, of 119 N. Ninth St., all of Stroudsburg.

Gougher, Goucher and Hardy pleaded guilty before Foelker last night to burglarizing Kenny's Bar on N. Ninth St., Stroudsburg, on Oct. 11. Bail on this charge will also be set by the court.

Absentee Voters Polled By Papers

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—The Fort Worth Star-Telegram has reported that Tarrant County — Fort Worth — citizens, marking ballots on opening day of absentee voting here for the Nov. 8 general election, showed a 76-52 preference for the Republican party ticket of Richard M. Nixon and Henry Cabot Lodge.

That was the result of the Star-Telegram poll of the 136 voters who appeared at the county clerk's office to mark absentee ballots. The poll will be taken daily until close of absentee voting Nov. 4.

In nearby Dallas, the Dallas News interviewed 20 who voted absentee and showed the Democrats leading 11-9.

Busy with paying the butcher, the baker, and the candlestick maker, many of us have lost sight of the costly toll laid upon our pocketbooks by government. Yet the latest figures are staggering.

Local, state and federal governing bodies will present the American people a 1960 bill in excess of $122-billion.

Divided equally, this would mean $677 for every person—regardless of age or earning power. For a family of five, it would add up to $3,380 just to run their government.

This is bad enough, but we aren't debt free. So there's an additional cost each of us must shoulder.

With the national debt fluctuating around $285-billion, every man, woman and child in the country has an additional load of $1,700 to carry.

Bearing in mind that it is our money that government spends, it is time to demand a close and careful accounting of the use of tax funds. Letting everybody get his hand into the public treasury for everything is no way to lighten the cost of government.

Who Makes Unemployment?

Right now, unemployment is getting much attention, as it always does in a political year. There are plans for aid to depressed areas, plans for more unemployment compensation, proposals for shorter work weeks and suggestions of earlier retirement for workers.

But not much is being said about who is unemployed. Who throws them out of work?

Some of them are put out of work by customers. People won't buy sleds in August, they stop buying coal and fuel oil, come spring. They get tired of jigsaw puzzles or hula hoops. They stop buying gas mantles and buy light bulbs. Or they bank their money instead of spending it.

Customers also put workers out of jobs when prices go up. The costs of wage increases, fringe benefits, shorter hours and other "advances" must be paid by the customers, and when he balks, wage increases, fringe benefits and work weeks, long or short, disappear as orders are withheld.

Nature makes unemployment, too. Cherries once picked are gone for a year. Snow plows are idle in summer. Little building is done in frost.

And much unemployment is the result of the lack of skill on the part of workers. Highly paid jobs can be waiting for applicants while the roll of unemployed are under-educated, possessed of skills in obsolete industries, or possessed only of the ability to do unskilled labor—for which there is less need all the time.

The unemployed often perpetuate unemployment by their attitudes toward various kinds of work and various levels of pay. Used to high wages coerced from employers, some unemployed will not take jobs at less pay even when they're available. They have come to regard high wages as their due, regardless of their abilities.

Government, too, makes unemployment through high tax rates which drain off money that would otherwise be invested in new facilities.

Do employers make unemployment? Sometimes, through bad judgment. But no employer wants to make unemployment. Each wishes his business to grow and employ as many people as it profitably can.

The trouble in many of the schemes designed to deal with unemployment is that they don't get at the root of causes of preventable unemployment, nor consider the caprices of customers, nature and government which affect it.

As a rule of thumb, a million dollars of private investment will do more good than a million dollars of government program.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Hallinan's Problem

Vincent Hallinan is an American lawyer who was invited by Soviet Russia to attend the trial of Francis Gary Powers in Moscow. Powers, you may recall, is an American aviator who came down or was brought down in Soviet Russia at an opportune time for Khrushchev to have an excuse to destroy the Paris Summit Conference.

Hallinan was not an observer for the Government of the United States; he was an observer for the government of Soviet Russia. Hallinan wrote a report of the Powers trial which had to do with espionage in Soviet Russia. Among the significant items in Hallinan's report is: "High Air Force officers had assured Powers that the Soviet radar was ineffective at the place where he crossed the frontier. It picked him up the moment he did so. They told him that he could not be hit from the ground and that no Soviet fighter could attain the altitude of the U-2."

"He was knocked down by the first rocket. He was given watches, rings and rubies to bribe the people of the U.S.S.R. to betray their country — the most fiercely patriotic people on earth."

This cannot be quite correct because it is now known that the United States had been engaged in reconnaissance and photographing flights over Soviet Russia for four years and therefore the question must be asked, why the pretense of sudden surprise over the Powers U-2 flight?

Also, how could a rocket bring the plane down without destroying Powers, who arrived on earth whole, with his equipment intact and available for Soviet inspection?

According to Hallinan, Powers said:

"I don't know how I was supposed to bribe them—I can't speak a word of their language."

Surely the lack of knowledge of a language has never made bribery impossible or even difficult. There is such a thing as sign language, if one wants to use it. Hallinan would say, probably, that the Russians are "the most fiercely patriotic people on earth" and therefore would not accept bribes.

That has not been universal experience with Russians any more than it has been with Germans, even Nazi Germans who made a fetish of patriotism. Also, why is not Hallinan so fiercely patriotic about the United States?

It is curious that Hallinan asks much of Powers' acceptance of his plight in Soviet Russia. How could a man who is sentenced to imprisonment take it so lightly? In fact, Hallinan's report is so favorable to Powers that it casts suspicion upon the flyer:

"I have been asked if there were any 'brain-washing' in the case. I answer that indeed there was, but not in the accepted sense. Powers and I discussed the applause of the audience. He was sure that the first outburst had been because Rudenko (the prosecutor) had not asked for the death penalty. He shook his head ruefully. 'I've sure changed my mind about a lot of things since I've been here.'"

It is rather unbelievable that any American would hold Hallinan's views. Yet this is what he puts in his report:

"We compare the minds which are directing this renaissance of human thought and achievement with those which managed the Powers fiasco and we wonder: 'If we finally force this country into war, how long will it take it to wipe our own country from the face of the earth.'"

"Right now, our security from that possibility depends on the good sense, patience and forbearance of the Soviet leaders and upon their ability to maintain a military strength beyond what might tempt our bully boys to attack it."

"One thing which the American public must realize is that the presence of our bomber-bases along the frontiers of the U.S.S.R., the probing of its defenses and the insulting truculence of our political and military cavemen can erupt in a cataclysm which will destroy the human species."

This was, of course, written before Khrushchev exhibited his refinement and culture in the United Nations. It was written before Khrushchev took his shoe off his foot to use it to pound a desk.

It was written before his display of the manners of an unruly monkey. Why is Soviet Russia always right and the United States always wrong in this lawyer's eyes? No wonder the Russians selected him as an observer — impartial perhaps!

'I'm Pretty Burned Up, Too!'

The Pennsylvania Story

Assembly Seats

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — It is ironic perhaps but one of the most underestimated phases of this year's election centers around filling House and Senate seats in the State Legislature.

As previously noted in this column, opposition control of the legislative branch to the man in the Governor's chair can be tantamount to having lost a governorship race!

No single instrument of overall government function can throttle a chief executive as quickly and effectively as an adverse Legislature.

A prime "local" example of this can be found in the present administration of Democratic Governor Lawrence who in his administration has found himself tussling constantly with legislative Republicans in control of the State Senate.

So-called "administration programs" have gone down the drain in almost mechanical succession — a bitter fact Mr. Lawrence (and his colleagues on the Democratic ticket this year) is driving home in the form of campaign issues.

On a larger and more prominent scale is the determined bid of the Republican Eisenhower Administration to have Republicans regain control of the next Congress.

It illustrates what oftentimes is termed "essential political liaison" between the legislative and executive branches of government — whether on the state or national level.

In the present campaign in the Keystone State attention in the main has been focused on the presidential and statewide candidates for office — with little or no note of the legislative bids being made in the counties alongside the "big trots."

These legislative races however are most significant and important.

In the State House of Representatives for example all 210 seats are up for refilling, while half of the 50-member State Senate will go through the clearing house on Nov. 8.

In virtually every instance, basic and important local issues are taking top billing. This is the expression of the strictly local voice.

The importance of these legislative "locals" lies in the fact, for example, that an administration (the executive branch) today constantly faces the threat of a legislative branch lodged completely in anti-administration hands. In other words, the Democratic Lawrence administration in November could wind up with a completely Republican House and Senate.

Under such conditions there unquestionably would be a repetition of the legislative ratrace of 1955-56 when in a near 18-month legislative stalemate — a record-breaker for the Keystone State — the Democratic executive branch and the GOP-controlled legislative branch stood off each other in a free-for-all that still pulses Capitol Hill.

However, at that time while Democrats controlled the House of Representatives, Republicans controlled only the State Senate — but it gave the anti-administration controlled Senate full veto power, or in effect virtually full legislative control.

This condition existed last year and in a move that sent the administration into fits, the 1959 session continued "in being" to blend into the 1960 session.

And, to the exasperation of Mr. Lawrence and his Democratic aides who have consistently pounded the boneyard in bitter opposition to having the Legislature breathe down its neck, the 1960 legislative session is still "in being" although in recess of course at the moment!

Lee Koehler, Stroudsburg attorney, "This country doesn't need a good five-cent cigar. It needs a good 10-cent one."

Dr. Joseph Vigione, Stroudsburg medical man, "If Penn State doesn't beat West Virginia this week I'll wheel-barrow anyone down Main St. from Stroud Union High to the Inter-Borough Bridge."

Dr. Frank Sills, head of the department of health and physical education at East Stroudsburg State, "ESSC has a great future ahead and Monroe County will benefit immensely in the surge."

Harold Hagen, former outstanding tackle for Gene Martin at East Stroudsburg State, "I'll be seeing a lot of you folks in the Poconos now since being named area representative for a top cement firm."

Dick Wolslayer, popular East Stroudsburg personality, "There is nothing so good in life as life itself."

Try and Stop Me

—by Bennett Cerf

Danny Kaye, attending a party outside Washington, D. C., was shown through the house by his young and lovely hostess. The tour completed, she asked, "Well, did you like it?" Danny replied sincerely, "What I liked best was your beautiful kisser."

The young hostess misunderstood Danny. She thought he said "kitchen." "You should have seen it before it was fixed up," she laughed gaily. "What a mess!"

Overheard on the fathers' bench at a seaside fathers-and-sons softball game: "I would like to live long enough so I could be as much of a nuisance to my children as they have been to me."

"Any man," opines Wise Old Owl Jack E. Leonard, "who thinks he's more intelligent than his wife is married to a darn smart woman."

The Allen-Scott Report

Cuban Atomic Program

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — As fantastic as it may sound, Premier Castro is trying to set up a full-scale atomic energy program in Cuba with the help of Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

The pro-Communist dictator is expected to reveal his ominous plans early in November when he announces the signing of a bilateral atomic agreement with Russia.

The Soviet-Cuban agreement, already secretly negotiated but not made public, provides that Russia will build an atomic research and power reactor near Havana and arrange for the training of Cuban scientists and technicians in Moscow.

These and other details of Castro's intriguing venture into the atomic field have been uncovered by agents of the Central Intelligence Agency and the Federal Bureau of Investigation operating in Cuba.

These intelligence agencies have reported to the National Security Council that Castro already has begun recruiting Communist scientists in Russia.

Dr. Manuel Gran, Cuba's Ambassador to France, is being recalled to Havana to reorganize and head up Cuba's inactive Nuclear Energy Commission.

The commission has been little more than a paper organization since it was established in 1955. Its functions were limited to arranging for Cuban scientists to train in U. S. atomic installations and for government control over the use of radioactive isotopes in medical research.

Both of these activities were carried on with U. S. help under a research agreement that was negotiated in 1956 before Castro came to power. Although this agreement is still in effect, there has been no exchange of personnel or atomic materials in recent months because of the deterioration of U. S.-Cuban relations.

Another U. S.-Cuban nuclear power research agreement was signed in 1958. However, this pact never became effective because neither country exchanged notes ratifying the agreement.

Inside Story — U. S. Intelligence and atomic officials are finding Castro's secret atomic efforts both intriguing and baffling.

One group headed by AEC Chairman John McCone believes that Castro is setting up his atomic program for propaganda and subversive purposes and not to attempt to obtain atomic weapons.

They look for the Cuban dictator to use Soviet built nuclear reactors and research facilities as a showplace to attract scientists from other Latin American nations. They also believe that the Kremlin plans to use Castro's program as a base for atomic espionage operations in the Western Hemisphere.

Another group headed by CIA Director Allen Dulles believes that Castro wants to go even further if the Russians will agree. They picture Castro as "power mad" with plans to use his program as a front to try to obtain a few small "nuisance" A-weapons from Russia to threaten the U. S.

The Dulles group reached this startling conclusion from a study of captured documents that indicate Castro is trying to recruit Red scientists skilled in the handling of nuclear weapons as well as for basic atomic research.

Neither of the groups give Castro the capability of being able, even with Soviet help, to produce his own atomic weapons in the foreseeable future.

Note: The sister of Raul Castro's wife, Vilma Exline, a militant Communist, is now studying nuclear energy in Paris. According to the CIA, she is maintaining strict contact with a Communist cell that is trying to obtain French atomic secrets.

Red Cuba — Rogelio Acevedo, chief of Cuba's Militia, has been picked by Castro to lead a march of students against the U. S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay in November.

Armando Torres, assistant intelligence chief of the Cuban Army, played a major role in the transporting of the two defectors from the National Security Agency from Mexico to Cuba.

Torres, a trusted aide of Raul Castro, met the two NSA experts in Mexico City and escorted them to Havana where they boarded a Soviet ship for Moscow. The trio was accompanied by Vladimir Katzergerin, a member of the Soviet secret police, who is operating from Mexico City.

During the past 50 years, more than 10,000 girls have taken part in the Camp Fire program. These amply as designed by H. Edward Oliver of Wilton, Conn.

Effective Jan. 1 the Post Office Department will revise its first day cover regulations which have permitted the mailing of first day cover requests up to and including the day of issue.

After Jan. 1, 1961 all first day covers must be postmarked before five days in advance of the date of issue and any received after the above will be returned to the sender unsorted. This will permit the Department to have all covers mailed on the day of issue and will be strictly adhered to so any one sending covers please take note.

The Camp Fire Girls stamp will feature a crossed log fire, with a perky flame set in a multiple bordered convex triangle and will be printed in blue and red and will mark the 50th anniversary of this girls organization.

Radar Checks In Operation On 307-611

CAPTAIN Vincent R. Scelere, Commanding Officer, Troop "A", District 3, Pennsylvania State Police, at Hazleton, Pa., reports that Pennsylvania State Police Radar Teams, emanating from his headquarters, have been in operation between Scranton and Stroudsburg, covering a fifty-mile stretch of Routes 307 and 611, since Oct. 15. This stretch of highway is posted indicating that radar speed checks are in operation. Prior to the institution of the radar check, 96 motor vehicle accidents were investigated by the Pennsylvania State Police between January 1st and October 15th on this particular highway—during the first week of the radar check, only one accident of a minor nature was investigated. Speeding arrests on this highway, since the inception of the radar check, have declined sharply.

Check 2108

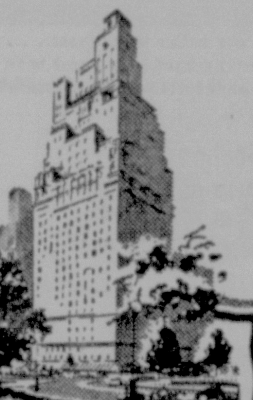

The Radar Team reports that, in checking 50 mile per hour zones on these highways, they have checked a total of 2108 passenger vehicles, 766 commercial vehicles, 61 buses, and 2 other vehicles during the first week of the check. 627 passenger vehicles, 145 commercial vehicles and 10 buses were found to be exceeding the speed limit.

As emphasized by Governor David L. Lawrence, no arrests can be made on the basis of radar evidence, however, the Troopers stopped violators issued warnings in cases where the speed limit was exceeded. There is no doubt that the Radar Check has had the effect of making drivers more speed conscious, more alert, and more careful in the operation of their vehicles.

It has been our experience that speed is responsible for other running, or operating violations. Speed causes operators to make improper passes at cures, crests of hills, and in the face of oncoming traffic it causes recklessness in the fact that speeding drivers do not have their vehicles in proper control when approaching other vehicles from the rear; it causes drivers to pass school buses when they have stopped to pick up or discharge school students; and it causes many other violations that cause injury, death, and property damage on our highways.

A Refreshing Difference In Contemporary Design

WHAT A refreshing difference is reflected in this contemporary design. Here, elegance is keyed to comfortable informality and not ostentation. Living conveniences abound in every room, but not merely in material forms. Many are achieved by keen analytical planning and identification of the designer with the occupants. Exterior is a pleasing combination of brick veneer, wood paneling and plenty of window area. It offers a sensible approach to modern living, combining functionalism with eye appeal. Nothing superfluous has been added. An impression is augmented by the integrated carport and opposite wing wall. Bigness in H-430, however, is more than illusion. This design is big and one has only to step inside to appreciate its size.

At center, entrance is recessed to take advantage of the roof for shelter. A glass panel beside the door lightens the entry, which is formed by guest closet and back of the living room book case. The entry leads into the all-important center hallway. Thanks to this hallway, only the dining area is beyond direct access. Right of the entry is the sleeping area. On the left is the magnificent living room and daytime activities area.

A wall-size picture window projects the living room outdoors and adds immeasurably to the already generous dimensions. If the multi-paned window carries you outside, the distinctive ledge-rook fireplace will quickly restore your presence. Centered on the side wall, the fireplace offers an ideal focal point for furniture groupings. Louvered doors separate the living room from the dining area and adjoining kitchen. Sliding glass doors from dining room to the covered rear porch expands this area considerably. The kitchen is a variation of a corridor design.

Cabinets and counters support work centers and back window is properly positioned above the double compartment sink. Only a couple steps away is the basement stairs and back door. H-430 is also available with utility room instead of basement. The remainder of the interior is devoted to the sleeping zone. The four bedrooms are bonafide sleeping rooms and even the smallest can handily accommodate twin bed arrangements. Bonus appointments provided in the master bedroom include private bath with shower and his and hers wardrobe units. Windows, and there are plenty of them, are set high for privacy and easy furniture positioning.

This plan conforms to general FHA, VA and Building Code requirements. Included with this plan you receive Specification Guide, Material List, and Conversion Detail Sheet. Your builder or material Supplier can give you the average cost per square or cubic foot in your area. This plan contains 1,497 square feet and 26,353 cubic feet.

Complete Building Plan, including Detail Sheet, Material List, and Specification Guide for Des. No. H-573 may be purchased for $9.75 for first set; 2 for $18.25; 3 for $26.25; or 4 for $33.75. You may also purchase The Daily Record Plan Book showing 71 designs for 75 cents postpaid. Address all questions and orders to HomOgraf Home Plan Dept., The Daily Record, Warren, Mich.

ON THE HOUSE
By Andrew C. Lang
AP Newsfeatures
NEW PAINTS are emerging from the laboratories in a steady stream, a large percentage of them aimed specifically at the do-it-yourself home owner.

It's a wise purchaser indeed who looks over his dealer's entire stock of paints and finishes before he makes his decision. A look-see is in order even if a visit has been made to the same store a week or two earlier. There's always a chance that the researchers will have come up with something that may fit a particular paint problem a little more specifically.

One of the unusual paints that seems to be making a hit in homes where there are small children is one that leaves a hard green or black slate finish. It can be written on with chalk or crayon and the writing easily erased with a regular blackboard eraser or damp rag. The color simulates the "bite" and writing qualities of slate and can be applied to wood, plaster, metal, composition board or any other surface.

Glass can be frosted with (what did you expect?) a glass-frosting paint. It allows the light to come through yet gives complete privacy. The paint is easy to apply and quick to dry and achieves an elastic, opaque finish that withstands scrubbing and extremes of temperature.

For a "baked-on" effect, there is a liquid porcelain enamel, especially suitable for use on washing machines, refrigerators, dryers and similar home appliances. It now is available in many colors so that it can be used for transforming white into a sunny shade as well as for a mere refinishing job. This enamel is said to be extra long-wearing, designed to withstand the onslaughts of boiling water, grease, steam, fumes and alcohol.

Once the exclusive province of gymnasium and other heavy-duty floors, a triple-duty varnish is available for the home. It is excellent for floors that get extra hard wear from children's boots, galoshes, etc.

While most radiators and ranges can be finished with ordinary paint, a much better result will be obtained with a special paint that can take temperatures of several hundred degrees Fahrenheit without peeling or cracking.

No matter what the paint problem, the chances are that some manufacturer has put out a product that will make your task easier.

Make better use of area space at walls and ceilings if rooms are small. Do you need that coffee table? Is that magazine rack necessary. Give yourself more floor space, and your room will look larger.

Resist the temptation to put another patterned piece in the room, if you already have one, or more in upholstery fabric, slip cover or draperies.

If your home lacks charm in spite of all your efforts ask yourself: Is it too bare to have personality? Could it be improved by a cheerful color—yellow, red or another vibrant shade.

Keep the refrigerator tidy, and you'll have more room at your disposal. Consolidate the leftover peas, carrots and green beans that are going into a stew. Choose deeper storage dishes. Grind up the stale bread for crumbs and put in a jar.

You Can Build This Santa To Greet Your Friends

THIS JOLLY Santa, holding a cherry lamp aloft, extends greetings to all who pass. By following the full-size pattern offered below, this 6 ft. Santa can be cut out of weatherproof panelboard that sells for approximately 10c a square foot. Actual cost of all materials required, except paints, shouldn't exceed $4.00.

Since the pattern provides both cutting and painting outlines which show exactly where each color is used, professional results are assured. The mouth, nose, eyes, beard and all shadings are outlined on the pattern. These are traced directly on the cut out Santa, then painted in sequence suggested. Step-by-step directions explain what colors to use, where and when each should be applied.

If you have admired the colorful decorations other families used at Christmastide, here's your chance to make one for your home that will create an enthusiastic comment. Place Santa at your front door, or out front and he'll help make Christmas a gay and cheerful holiday.

By following the step-by-step directions outlined in the pattern, a small electric light can be wired behind the translucent lamp. This adds a wonderful note children love to see. The shelf on the back of Santa provides space for placing dummy packages. Step-by-step directions explain how to wire St. Nick's lamp as well as build the necessary stand for outdoor use.

Send 50 cents in coin, check or money order for Life Size Santa. Pattern No. 575. A catalog illustrating over 300 other Build It Yourself Projects is available at 35 cents. Add 25 cents for first-class mail and send to The Daily Record, P.O. Box 215, Pleasantville, N. Y.

QUESTION: We've moved into a new house. Everything is satisfactory except the ceramic tile in the bathroom. The tile has a dull appearance and never seems to get really clean, no matter how much it is scrubbed. Can you tell us how to get the dull look from the tile?

Answer: The small ceramic tiles used on a bathroom floor—known as mosaics—are attached to paper, which is pulled off after the tile have been laid. The tiles then must be cleaned immediately to remove all traces of the adhesive. Since you have a new home, it is possible the installer neglected to clean the tiles properly. Or some of the mortar used between the joints may still be clinging to the tile surfaces.

Some hardware stores sell a special solvent or cleaner for ceramic tiles. If you are unable to get it, buy some powdered pumice, mix it with water and, using a clean cloth, rub down the tiles.

Faith, Health And Education Are Viewed By Teen-Agers Requisites For Presidency

By Eugene Gilbert
President of the Gilbert Youth Research Co.
BETWEEN now and the second Tuesday in November we will be hearing a great deal about the respective qualifications of Richard M. Nixon and John Fitzgerald Kennedy for the office of President of the United States.

The Constitution prescribes only two: that the office holder be 35 years of age and born in the United States. All other conditions are prescribed by the nominating conventions of both major parties and, in the final analysis, by the electorate itself.

In general, what are the qualifications that most voters expect in a candidate for President. What should he be and mean in the opinion of most people to win the highest office in the land?

We put these questions to 985 teen-agers across the country in an attempt to determine the image that young America has of what a presidential candidate should be or should not be. None of the youngsters interviewed will be eligible to vote on Nov. 8. Indeed, few of them will be able to vote when the next presidential election rolls around in 1964.

Despite their temporary status of onlookers in this great national drama, we found most of the teen-agers keenly interested in the impending battle between Republican Nixon and Democrat Kennedy. All had very definite ideas of what a President should be.

"The Man Who..."
In the minds of most, with personalities aside, it was felt that a presidential candidate must at least:

Believe in God.
Be a college graduate.
Be in reasonably good health.
Not have undergone psychiatric treatment.
Never have belonged to the Communist Party.
Never have been a conscientious objector to the draft.

Not be an active advocate of World Federalism.
These are the minimum things, in the minds of most teen-agers, that a candidate must be or must not be to qualify for President.

In other controversial areas, however, they were far more lenient than many of their elders.

For instance:
76 per cent said they would vote for a candidate who was divorced.

53 per cent said they would vote for a candidate over 65.
61 per cent would vote for a candidate who had jumped parties.

95 per cent would vote for a Protestant.

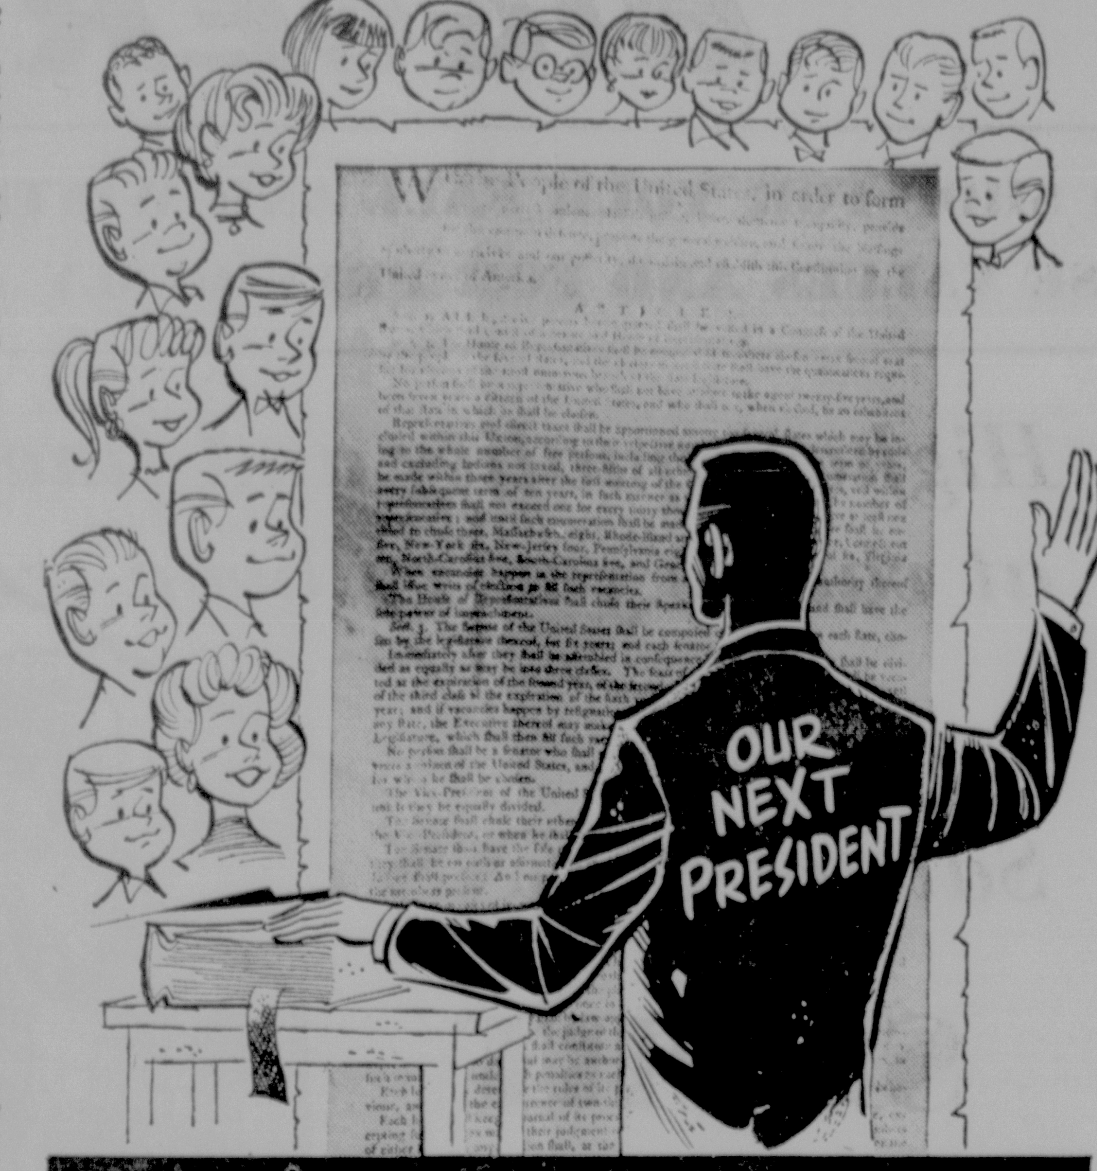

70 per cent would vote for a Catholic.

52 per cent would vote for a Jew.

More youngsters would reject a candidate who had once been a Communist (80 per cent), than one who didn't believe in God (72 per cent). And far more would reject a candidate in poor health (88 per cent) than one who had undergone psychiatric treatment (47 per cent).

On the atheism question, 17-year-old Patricia Albright of Claremont, Calif., expressed the majority viewpoint that "the United States is a God-fearing nation and I think our President should believe in God." Speaking for the 24 per cent minority group who would vote for a candidate who did not believe in God, 18-year-old Thomas Engelmann of Charleston, S. C., argued that "just because a man does not believe in God, does not mean he is incapable of executing his duties as President."

Would Reject
Most of the 20 per cent who would reject a divorced candidate at the polls asked the same question as 17-year-old Thomas Kapp of Miami Beach, Fla.: "If he can't handle his own troubles, how's he going to handle the world?"
But most teen-agers (76 per cent) seemed to agree with 17-year-old Sandra Speth of St. Louis, Mo., that "divorce is a personal thing and has no place in a campaign."

Since Catholic John Kennedy is the Democratic nominee, the thinking behind the 25 per cent who would reject a Catholic candidate may be of more than passing interest. Their objections ranged from fear of the Pope and the candidate's freedom to act on a birth control bill to a belief that we are "essentially a Protestant nation by heritage and population."

One girl frankly admitted that she would not vote for a Catholic "because I have a religious prejudice." She gave the identical answer when it came to voting for a Jew.

Most of those who would turn down a candidate who had been a Communist at some time in the past had no doubts about the possibility of sincere conversion but felt his background would be a drawback in dealing with world problems. "Even though completely converted," commented 16-year-old Sue Parrish of Richmond, Va., "he would arouse suspicion among non-Communist nations and hatred in the Communist bloc."

Role of Education
The most striking division of opinion was recorded in answer to a question of whether a candidate must be a college graduate. The 40 per cent who said they would vote for a non-college man cited Abraham Lincoln, Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Edison and other self-made men who figured so prominently in the history of the Republic.

"A college diploma," insisted 17-year-old Olivia Kredel of Charleston, S. C., "doesn't make a man any better, nor does the lack of it make him any worse."

But the 55 per cent who deemed a college education an essential qualification for the presidency argued that the world has become too complex to entrust its future to the whims of the self-made men.

"In today's world, which gets smaller each day while the problems get larger, an education is utmost," said 17-year-old Sharon Glickman of Miami Beach, Fla.

Buying Pig In Poke

By William A. Doyle

Q. I have purchased 100 shares of Telefonos De Mexico stock. The stock certificate is printed in Mexican and has coupons attached. I cannot read the certificate but I understand that a good dividend is paid on this stock. Can you tell me anything about this stock? Better still, can you read Mexican?

A. This is the perfect example of buying a pig in a poke. Fortunately for you, you got a healthy animal. But that doesn't excuse you. You should always investigate before you invest—not after.

Telefonos De Mexico (Mexican Telephone Co.) has been paying dividends on its stock once a year. The latest dividend, declared last March, was at the rate of 80 cents a share. The method of dividend payments on this and many other foreign stocks often confuses U.S. investors. The dividends are not mailed to the stockholders automatically. The stockholders must clip coupons from their stock certificates and present the coupons in order to receive the dividends. The latest dividend payment on this stock was on coupon No. 24. Stockholders in this country collect their dividends by presenting the coupons to First National City Bank of New York, the U.S. dividend disbursing agent.

Or you can turn in the certificate you now hold and receive an "American Depository Receipt." Morgan Guaranty will collect the dividend for you as they are declared and mail them to you.

One more thing. If you want a translation of the "Mexican printing" on your stock certificate, take it to someone who reads.

Q. Who is the employer of the specialists who work on the floor of a stock exchange?

A. Nobody. Each specialist is a member of the exchange on which he operates. The function of a specialist is to maintain a fair and orderly market, as far as is reasonably possible, in the stocks in which he specializes.

Q. Does each specialist "make a market" in only one stock?

A. Most specialists handle a number of stocks. In some cases, a specialist handles only one stock—because there is a great deal of trading in that stock.

Q. Is there a specialist for every stock listed on a stock exchange?

A. Yes.

Q. Who assigns the stocks to be handled by each specialist?

A. Either the board of governors or the particular com-

Just Between Us —

Are you the kind of person who feeds stray cats? If you find a lost child in a store do you comfort him and try to find his mother? When the bag of groceries bursts do you try to help the old lady ahead of you pick up the pieces? I mean, if nobody else is looking to see whether you do or not?

What kind of people are you? Oh, I know some of you are and some of you aren't, but I mean most of you. I've got a private bet on with myself that I know, and willing or not you're going to prove me right or wrong.

I made the bet at the Community Chest report meeting yesterday when it seems that all of the divisions are going great guns everywhere except house-to-house in East Stroudsburg and the county. Now, from observing all sorts of welfare drives I already know that, if pressed, most of you will give something.

Mostly it's a dollar; whether it's for a single health drive, a tag day for Little League, or the 12 agencies of the Community Chest, indicating that you aren't giving to a cause, exactly, but to the neighbor who comes asking for your donation.

Now, my bet is on the question of whether, if they don't get captains and block workers and house-to-house canvassers, you'll give something anyway? Remember, the conditions are that nobody else is watching you; it's going to take some extra effort on your part to find an envelope and stamps or to take your contribution to the Community Chest office; and nobody's going to remind you.

What would your guess be on the outcome? Let's hope we're wrong.

Housewarming Addition At Smithfield School

"What is the school trying to do?" was the question asked by Carl Secor, supervising principal of East Stroudsburg Area Joint Schools as he welcomed the Parent-Teachers Assn. of the Smithfield School to the housewarming of the new extension to the school on Monday.

One thing the school is trying to do is to teach the children to have pride and to take care of the new buildings which have been attained with such difficulties.

"The basic purpose of education is the development of character, of initiative and of integrity," he said. "If we have that, the rest is easy."

Summarizing the philosophy of the board of education which considers the pupil as the center of the educational process, he listed the traits of desired end product:

Physical, mental and emotional health; moral and ethical values; an appreciation for the role in the family and in civic groups; skill for effective participation in the democratic processes; the ability to communicate ideas; knowledge of his natural environment; economic competence as a consumer; appreciation of the arts, wise use of leisure time; logical and positive thinking; constructive leadership; a zeal for continuous learning and self improvement; and the ability to earn for himself and his family an honest livelihood without encroaching on the rights of others.

Allen Sterner, principal, and DeWitt Farrington, supervisor of the architectural firm which constructed the school, led the parents on a tour of the new section.

Through the "silver door" the group went down the hallway, paved with tinted tile and lighted by a bank of windows and skylights into the new gymnasium which also serves as an auditorium. They also inspected the health room, library, office and board room, and class rooms for the first and second grade and the new kindergarten, the first in the Smithfield school.

Included in the new addition are modern tiled lavatories and a new furnace room equipped with an oil burner.

The warm color schemes, the banks of lights, provisions for ventilation, for drinking fountains and sinks in the classrooms, and vinyl wall covering met with approval and admiration of the parents.

A large attendance was recorded with the prize going to Miss Keble's first grade who will have possession of the banner, a red one with a black pussy cat made by Mrs. John Simms, membership chairman.

Mrs. Ackerman, chairman of home room mothers, invited mothers to come to the school on Friday at 2 p.m. to see the Halloween Parade. The PTA Fall Dinner will be served November 17 at Marshall's Creek firehouse, Morgan Hebard, president, announced.

The principal introduced new members of the staff: Mr. Wilt, physical education assistant; Mrs. Dolores Martin, assisting in third grade; Mrs. Alma Sutton, vocal teacher; and Mrs. Rosemary McMahon, the combination first and second grade teacher.

Gingerbread cookies and cider were served by the hospitality committee: Mrs. Stanley Wisegarver, chairman; Mrs. Claude Ace, Mrs. Harmon Mosler and Mrs. Parke Unangst.

Mr. and Mrs. Graydon B. Miller (Lawrence Studio)

Miss Ruth Detrick Bride Of Graydon B. Miller

Miss Ruth Marion Detrick, daughter of Mrs. Mary Alice Detrick of 356, Braeside Ave., East Stroudsburg, became the bride of Graydon B. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Graydon James Miller of 835 Thomas St., Stroudsburg on October 8 at 3 p.m.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Harold C. Eaton at the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church which was decorated with altar vases of white carnations and bouquets of white ribbon bows and bouquets of mums on the church pews.

Miss Bernina Hostetter was organist and Richard Wolbert, soloist, sang "The Lord's Prayer" while the couple was kneeling at the altar.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Elmer Detrick, wore a waltz-length gown of rosepoint lace and net over taffeta, fashioned with a scalloped and pleated front panel. Her shoulder-length veil of silk illusion fell from a double crown headpiece of sequins and pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white orchid surrounded by white sweetheart roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Carole Detrick of Wooddale, wore a ballerina length dress of lavender chiffon with a matching hat and veil. She carried a colonial bouquet of Fall flowers.

The flower girls, Colleen and Corinne Taylor, nieces of the bridegroom, wore dresses of a similar style, Colleen in peach nylon with white trim and Corinne in aqua with white trim. They both wore white bow hats with veils and carried bouquets of Fall flowers to match their dresses.

James Detrick Jr. of Wooddale was best man. Ushers were Curtis Detrick and Ernest Kemmerer.

Mrs. Detrick, mother of the bride, wore a royal blue lace dress with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. Mrs. Taylor, sister of the bridegroom, wore a white jersey sheath dress with olive green accessories and a corsage of white roses.

A reception for about 150 guests was held at the Elks Home in East Stroudsburg. The hall was decorated with streamers and bells and music was furnished by the Seldonaire featuring both round and square dancing.

After a wedding trip to Lake George, N.Y., the newlyweds are now residing with the bridegroom's parents, at 835 Thomas St., Stroudsburg.

The Wyckoff Shopper
the friendly store
A.B. Wyckoff
STROUDSBURG, PA.

Had I half as much curiosity about my neighbors as I do about celebrities, I would have been run out of town ages ago. Thank heaven, I do not. Neighborhood comings and goings concern me not at all... but tell me there's a front page personality somewhere around, and something happens that is not unlike whatever it is that happens to a bull when a red flag is waved under his nose.

I have not seen Senator and Mrs. Kennedy. I should like to. But thanks to Parke Unangst, chairman of the Republican committee in our county, I have seen, and exchanged words with, Vice President Nixon and Mrs. Nixon. As proof, I have one pair of badly trampled suede shoes, one with ripped buckle; a framed picture of Mr. Nixon with his autographed Vice-Presidential calling card tucked into the frame, and the memory of how utterly comic I must have looked when... at the close of the Muhlenberg College rally... I leaped over the press table and tried to step (in a narrow sheath) to a platform at least 16 inches high. Had not some kindly gentleman reached down and pulled me up, I would still have been standing there with my posterior to the television cameras, unable to get either up or down.

Prior to the Allentown jaunt, in company of Fran Shinn, representing the Republican committee; Bobby Westbrook of the Daily Record, and her daughter, Nancy, I had typed a note to Pat Nixon, enclosing twenty-some questions of interest to women. These I had entrusted to a friendly policeman, who assured me he would see she received them, although he refused a tip, because of his position. (This should be mentioned, I think, because had he accepted something only he and I would have been the wiser.) "I'll do it as a public service," he explained. I later learned there were messages galore handed in for the couple.

What impression do the Nixons create? One of ruddy good health on his part... one of ladylike, rather fragile, beauty on hers... and, on the part of each, the realization that they are far more attractive in person than in their pictures. Television lights accentuate Mr. Nixon's heavy beard, thick eyebrows, and strong chin. The cameras fail to pick up the spontaneity and naturalness of his smile... his rather boyish gestures... and the informality of his occasional quips. Where Mrs. Nixon is concerned, the cameras caricature her face, making her cheekbones jut, her chin and nose point sharply. Actually, her cheekbones are high and her chin decided... but the skin drawn so smoothly over them is so velvety in appearance and so ivory-smooth, there is a softness in her face that is very gentle and very feminine.

Pat Nixon's mouth is rather thin and not too curved. It is a sweet mouth, and was touched with wine-red lipstick in a rich burgundy shade that matched her neat, two-piece wool dress with accented stitch-pleated skirt. Buttoned snugly to the collar, it was topped by a short choker of rather large pearls, matching button earrings. Her legs and ankles are trim, and she wore black pumps with simple black veils. Her hair is brown (some say with an auburn tinge, which evaded me) and waved prettily beneath a smart velvet pillbox that reminded me of a fruit bowl... its various quilted designs were of burgundy, gold, and beige on a rich bed of green velvet leaves.

Mrs. Nixon's hands are thin, and long, and my personal feeling is that full length sleeves would be far more becoming to her than 3/4, since she wears no gloves. (This may be because of the wear and tear hand shaking would represent.) Her eyes appeared to be gray under the lights, although I had heard they were brown, and are very deep set. Because of this she sometimes looks sad, when her face is in repose. When she turns and the light catches her eyes, she seems very young and quietly gay. She is alert to every reaction of the crowd... reserved, poised, and in complete accord with her husband. She emphasizes points of his speech with a nod of her head... seemed to actually flinch when he termed Castro a "cancer" on today's society... engaged in a bit of pantomime with me about my note, and told me later she would look it up and try to answer my questions.

As for Mr. Nixon, he wore a bit of pancake makeup, I believe... has a rosy but tanned complexion... was dressed in gray with a light blue shirt, dark blue tie flecked with blue, for the benefit of TV cameras, and sculptured gold cuff links. He gave me not one but two autographed cards at our brief tete a tete, during which we were pummeled in opposite directions.

So there's a first hand picture of the Vice President and his wife. How they remain so fresh and smiling after all these relentless weeks of campaigning, I'll never know. But if some vitamin manufacturer doesn't try to get their endorsement, he's overlooking a great bet!

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Paris (AP)—Former Premier Guy Mollet, emerging as generalissimo of the forces seeking to curse the government of President Charles de Gaulle, charged yesterday that France is endangering Western unity.

"If you let yourselves go on down hill, we shall be led to grave events," he warned De Gaulle's handpicked premier, Michel Debre. "An isolated nation cannot defend itself."

The Socialist leader, who encouraged De Gaulle's return to power to avert civil war in May 1958, was heading a four-party attempt to unseat the Gaullist Cabinet.

If the censure motion goes through, which is held unlikely, Debre will be forced to resign and De Gaulle probably will call new elections or a national referendum. De Gaulle's position as president is not at stake, but his prestige is.

The issue is De Gaulle's plan for giving France a $1.2 billion atomic striking force, but the censure motion went far beyond that. It aimed at De Gaulle's whole foreign policy—his conception of Europe as a continent of separate states, his refusal of political and military integration, his apparent tendency toward diplomatic isolation.

Palmer, Gleason Film 10 Frigid Holes At Shawnee

Golf And Gags Epic Ends Today

BY CURT PRINS

SOMEONE behind comedian Jackie Gleason spoke as the "The Great Gleason" settled himself for a sand shot.

Gleason turned his head, (it would have taken too long to turn his whole body) and glared at the vocal of-fender but broke into a wide grin and laughed, "I have to have some kind of excuse for missing the shot."

Gleason missed quite a few shots in the first half of his television film match at Shawnee Inn against Arnold Palmer, the U. S. Open and Master's Champion but he never missed a punch line.

When the lunch break was called at the fifth hole, Palmer, who was voted the Professional Golfer's Assn. "Golfer of the Year" for 1960, had Gleason one-down in the match play event.

Stroke Spot

Palmer spotted Gleason a stroke a hole and Gleason, used the stroke to win the second hole and halve the first and fourth.

er, whipped along by a brisk breeze, called to put a damper on the comedy or the golf.

Palmer finished the first day's shooting (10-holes) at even par. The final eight holes will be filmed today at 9:30 a.m.

Palmer stunned the crowd of 500 on the third hole when he unleashed a 310-yard drive that left him only a 50-yard wedge shot into the green.

He knocked his second shot 25 feet past the pin and rolled in a birdie putt.

Near Mark

Palmer, who is less than $1,500 away from the PGA mark for money winnings in a single year, also provided his share of the laughs.

At the fourth green, Palmer was faced with a six-footer for a par, while Gleason had a two-footer for a half.

Gleason paced nervously around his ball while Palmer lined up his putt.

Palmer let Gleason pace for a minute or two and then quipped, "What are you doing Jack, standing sentry duty?"

Vocal Bird

Gleason, who left his role in the Broadway play, "Take Me Along," last week after a year's top billing, scored a "vocal birdie" on the second tee.

Gleason received some tips from Shawnee pro Harry Obitz during the playing of the first hole, causing Palmer to issue a mock protest on the second tee.

"Why shouldn't I have Harry help me," Gleason replied, "your daddy helped you."

Gleason was referring to Milfred Palmer, golf professional at Latrobe Country Club since 1921.

Palmer's dad started Arnold in golf, when he was three years old, which gives Palmer a 23-year head start over Gleason on the golf course. Gleason took the game up four years ago.

Gleason pulled probably the most spectacular (and lucky) shot on the front nine.

Palmer hit the fourth green, a par four hole, in regulation figures but Gleason's third shot was still 15 yards from the green and 35 yards from the pin. He rolled an eight-iron shot toward the pin on the sloping green and apparently hit the ball too hard. The ball rolled past the pin and started up a sharp incline, losing its forward progress at the edge of the green.

The ball rolled some 20 feet back down the hill and stopped 18 inches from the cup, with Palmer shaking his head in disbelief.

"It pays to know the green," Gleason joked as he reached for his putter.

Earlier in the frigid fairway battle, Gleason pushed a shot well to the right that narrowly missed one of the cameras and landed in the rough, in the opposite direction from the green.

When the crowd gasped, Gleason roared, "Just where I wanted it," and then dumped his next two shots into bunkers.

Gleason went through a dance routine on the sixth hole, after canning a 50-foot birdie putt.

The batting hero of the World Series, Bill Mazeroski, whose ninth inning home run won the Series for the Pittsburgh Pirates, was in the crowd, which included three bus-loads of East Stroudsburg State College physical education students.

PUTTING ON HEX SIGN—Jackie Gleason, TV comedian and second best golfer on Shawnee Country Club's course, tried desperately to unnerve Arnold Palmer during yesterday's play. Gleason Keeps It Warm With Humor

"HE'S ONE OF THE GREATEST guys to work with there is," offered Bud Palmer as Jackie Gleason teed off in his golf match against Arnold Palmer at Shawnee Inn Tuesday.

"I did some of the commercials for the old Gleason show on Saturday nights," Palmer continued, "and whenever there was some tension, Gleason was the most relaxed person around. He would ease everything with a wisecrack."

Gleason kept any tension from building Monday, when the anti-Pocono Chamber of Commerce weather, could have frayed tempers.

He gagged with the crowds and cameramen and most of the gagging came when the cameras weren't grinding.

Both Palmer and Gleason conversed freely with the spectators and held the crowd until the end of the day's filming, despite the cold.

The camera crews and production staff handled the crowd excellently, never ordering but asking.

Bud Palmer's Voice To Be Dubbed Later

Bud Palmer, who will narrate the match, when it is released in March, had a tough time charting each hole and shot, but he took time out to sign autographs and answer questions.

Palmer's voice will be dubbed in later but the crowd noise and the comments of Gleason, the golfing Palmer, and the match referee, Shawnee Inn pro Harry Obitz, were recorded.

Crowd Grew At Every Hole

Only about 75 people were on hand when the match started but the crowd grew at every hole and by the end of the day it had reached 500.

A portion of Obitz' "Swing's The Thing" show was also filmed.

The golf production will share the billing with a Gleason vs. Willie Mosconi billiards match. The two will be run on a 90-minute program.

Not all of the golf footage will be used. The holes that lacked action will be cut.

The third hole would have probably been spliced out, after Gleason missed three shots and ended with a six but Palmer canned a 25-foot birdie putt, to insure the hole's TV appearance.

Palmer swings an extra-stiff shaft driver with a D-9 swing weight.

The camera crews are equipped with several huge cranes that can lift a camera and two men almost 90 feet straight up.

Cranes Give Cameramen A Lift

Gleason got off one of his better quips at the second tee. The second hole, a 130-yard par three, includes a 110-yard carry over an inlet of the Delaware River.

Gleason cleared the river and as Palmer took a practice swing, warned: "Watch out for the water Arnie, it's deep and you have to play the ball out of it."

Just before Palmer hit his shot, Gleason added: "Oh I remember this hole well, this is where I beat Johnny Weissmuller."

But the hill record of 36.3514 set by Bill Rutan of Essex, Conn. was not broken.

Janet Possinger of Mt. Pocono broke her own record set last May by a second with a 44.2765 time. The ladies class trophy, decided on the formula basis, went to Toni Keyser of Royersford driving an Austin Healey Sprite. Her time was 53.9808.

Each driver had one run up the hill. Second runs were called off by the drivers because of rain.

Gabe Paul Quits Reds For Houston

CINCINNATI (AP)—Gabe Paul quit as general manager of the Cincinnati Reds Tuesday to take a similar job with Houston, which will have a team in the National League in 1962. His successor was not named.

The affable Gabe, who joined the Reds' organization in 1936, said he was starting "right now" to make Houston a power in the National League. "His contract is for three years."

His new job is with the Houston Sports Association, which recently was granted a franchise in the old major league along with New York.

"Tough Club"

"This is going to be a tough club in the free agency field," the 50-year-old Paul told newsmen.

"We're starting tomorrow to sign free agents. I think the other major league clubs will know they have competition in signing the youngsters."

Paul said he was certain a way would be worked out through which Houston and New York would get some experienced players from other clubs so they will field strong teams in 1962.

Oregon St. Gainer In No. 2 Spot

By The Associated Press

TERRY Baker, a husky, 6-foot-3 195-pound sophomore tailback from Oregon State College, has gained 586 yards in his last two games and is right up there challenging passer Howard Dyer of Virginia Military Institute for the total offense lead in major college football.

Baker's rise to second from eighth last week was the most significant change recorded Tuesday in the weekly statistical release from the NCAA Service Bureau.

Baker, who passes left-handed with pinpoint accuracy, gained 284 yards against Idaho two weeks ago and 302 yards (the season's second-best total) against Washington last Saturday. In his first four games this season, he gained only 427 yards. Now he has a 1,013-yard total to Dyer's 1,076.

Bob Gaiters of New Mexico State, scoring at a record rate of 2 1/2 touchdowns a game, held his place as leading rusher and leading point-getter.

Top Grid Prize Goes To Bachman

VALENTINE Bachman, Stroudsburg R.D. 2, picked 20 winning teams this past weekend to take first prize in The Daily Record's weekly Football Contest.

Bachman picked every winning team except one and the two tie games.

Second prize money is divided by Bruce Noyes, East Stroudsburg and Albert Ingetti, Pocono Summit. Each picked 19 winning teams, missing two and two tie games. Each missed picking high score of the week by four points. Ingetti picked 34 and Noyes 62. High score of the week was 58.

There's still a chance for you to get in the money this year by entering the Daily Record's Weekly football contest which appears in today's newspaper.

Williams Wants Baseball Job

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Ted Williams wants to stay in baseball but "emphatically, I have no desire or ambition to become a manager."

"I would like to work into the administrative end, but hope it could be in same role where I would be close to the players," the retired Boston Red Sox slugger told sports editor Tommy Devine of the Miami News Tuesday.

Michigan State's 76-man football squad includes 14 married players.

Ex-Envoy Joins 'Move' To Overthrow Castro

LONDON (AP)—Fidel Castro's former ambassador to Britain took off for Florida last night vowing to join an army of Cuban refugees which he said is poised for a counterrevolution to overthrow the Castro regime. Considerable skepticism greeted his assertion in Florida and in Washington.

"You will see an uprising," promised Sergio Rojas Santamarina, 45, "that will make Budapest look like nothing."

The diplomat said a "vast underground army" is organized throughout Cuba, all set to strike against the Castro regime. They will be joined, Rojas said, by "thousands and thousands" of exiles who will pour back into Cuba from Miami and Mexico, Venezuela and other parts of Latin America.

But Cuban exiles in Washington said Rojas is not regarded as a spokesman for anti-Castro forces. A Miami police official dismissed the invasion idea as "just more talk."

Rojas used to be Havana's man in London until he was "dishonorably dismissed" by Castro earlier this year. He returned to Havana to resign and sought asylum in the Argentine Embassy before coming back to Britain. With him on the New York-bound jetliner were his wife and daughter, Patricia, 6.

"I know the danger is there but I must have my belief and I must go along with the men who are determined to throw Castro out," Rojas said.

He assailed Castro as a tool of international communism.
